In this issue Dr P. D. Vize and colleagues describe production of transgenic pigs containing a porcine growth hormone under the transcriptional control of a human metallothionein-IIA promoter. One of these expressed the introduced gene and grew at an increased rate. This is the pig

Journal of Cell Science is devoted to all aspects of cell biology. Papers are published dealing with all levels of organization, from the molecular to the cellular. The range of the journal is wide and it includes contributions on development and morphogenesis at the molecular and cellular levels. Theoretical papers and occasional reviews are published. Short surveys of topical subjects appear in each issue under the general title 'Commentary'.

Subscriptions

The Journal appears monthly (three volumes, each of four parts, per year). In addition, in 1988 there will be two Supplements (numbers 9 & 10) which are included in the subscription price.
